Celebrating a vision

A gospel choir, above, sings at the Sacramento Community Convention Center Sunday night at the seventh annual concert in honor of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. At right, Julius Williams conducts the Sacramento Symphony, which performed with the choir. Other events scheduled to mark King's birthday today include the ninth annual march, which will leave the Oak Park Community Center, 3425 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd., at 7 a.m. The march will continue along a 5.8-mile route to arrive at the Community Convention Center at 10 a.m. The center will be the site of an all-day community celebration, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., featuring cultural exhibits, entertainment, traditional foods, voter registration and more. A holiday closings list is on page B2.
